Most dramatically of all, farmworkers too often struggle with food insecurity, meaning the workers who feed America too often cannot feed their own families.

WHAT IS THE AGAPE SERVICE PROJECT?

A Christ-centered service program that empowers middle and high school students and adults to enter into direct, mutually beneficial relationships with the farmworker community in Whatcom County.

Our ultimate goal is to build personal relationships with the farmworker families. Our relational social services include a weekly food bank, increasing access to health and human services, providing educational and recreational activities for children of farmworkers, college scholarships for farmworkers pursuing higher education, and supporting just farms with volunteer labor.

Throughout the summer, groups of middle and high school youth come to Whatcom County for week-long, faith-filled service-learning experiences.

Participants learn about issues affecting migrant farmworkers, human dignity, and why and how we as Catholics are called to serve. Through a week of solidarity, all are challenged to meet and serve Christ in every person with sacrificial love.

THE STAFF MAKE IT ALL HAPPEN:

Agape's summer staff is a team of passionate, faith-filled, and well-trained young adults who work together to coordinate and plan the entire program and operate all social services.

This includes the programming for parish/school groups: planning for the summer, facilitating sessions of prayer and reflection, and leading the service activities.

It also includes: operating all of the social services for the farmworker community, service to local farms, volunteer management, and aspects of program operations (ex: social media & donor relations).
